Call for Applications: Mobility scholarships – participation in conferences, workshops, colloquia

The Max Weber Stiftung – Georgia Branch Office supports further development of exchange and cooperation in the broader field of history and related disciplines between the scientific communities of the South Caucasus and Germany. To this end, we are offering short term mobility scholarships to attend conferences, workshops, and colloquia in Germany for the period from 1 July to 31 December 2024.

Applicants are advanced Master-Students, PhD-students or hold a PhD. They are affiliated to an institution in the South Caucasian countries. They work on a topic that corresponds to the research profile of the Georgia Branch Office (<https://mwsgeorgia.hypotheses.org/2>).

The scholarship enables participation in an event in Germany that is of reasonable relevance to the applicant's own research project. It is intended to cover the additional expenses resulting from participation. The costs are reimbursed on presentation of the corresponding invoices. The Georgian Office's reimbursement of costs is limited to 700 euros.

In addition to the informal letter of application the following documents must be submitted:

- Exposé on the research project and explanation of the relevance of the event (approx. 2 pages)
- Brief assessment by the academic supervisor (or another expert in the relevant field) (up to one page)
- Curriculum vitae (with list of publications)
- Invitation from the organiser
- Copy of the Bachelor's, Master's or doctoral degree certificate
- Proof of knowledge of the relevant working language of the event
